Dear Sir / Madam

Gwynedd and Anglesey: Joint Local Development Plan Matters Arising Changes Submission on behalf of National Grid

I have been instructed by National Grid to submit the following representation with regards to the above consultation.

National Grid owns and operates the high voltage electricity transmission system in England and Wales and operate the Scottish high voltage transmission system.

National Grid infrastructure within Gwynedd and Anglesey's administrative area

Electricity Transmission

National Grid has four high voltage overhead lines and three underground cables (listed below) within Gwynedd and Anglesey's administrative area. These form an essential part of the electricity transmission network in England and Wales.

Line Ref.	Description
4ZA line	400kV route from Wylfa substation in Anglesey to Pentir substation in Gwynedd
4ZC line	400kV route from Trawsfynydd substation in Gwynedd to Pentir substation in Gwynedd
4ZB line	400kV route from Pentir substation in Gwynedd to Deeside substation in Flintshire
ZK line	400kV route from Deeside substation in Flintshire to Trawsfynydd substation in Gwynedd
	275kV underground cable from Trawsfynydd substation in Gwynedd to Ffestiniog substation in Gwynedd
	400 kV underground cable from Pemntir substation to Gwynedd to Dinorwig
EV line	132 kV route from Wylfa substation in Anglesey to Penrhos substation in Anglesey

The following substations are also located within the administrative area of Gwynedd and Anglesey:

Wylfa substation – 400kV
Pentir substation – 400kV and 132kV
Dinorwig substation – 400kV
Penrhos substation – 132 kV

National Grid has provided information in relation to electricity transmission assets via the following internet link:

<http://www2.nationalgrid.com/uk/services/land-and-development/planning-authority/shape-files/>

SPECIFIC COMMENTS

Paragraphs affected by NMC 127, 128 and 129 cover planning obligations and Nationally Significant Infrastructure Projects (NSIPs).

As part of the planning process National Grid will seek to mitigate against the unacceptable impacts of its proposed developments through 'in-built' mitigation including design, the elements of which will be identified within submitted proposals. Where there are residual unacceptable impacts, then other planning controls (including conditions/requirements, and obligations) can be considered in balance with other considerations including National Grid's own statutory duties.

The Overarching National Policy Statement for Energy (EN-1) sets out when planning obligations may be used for energy infrastructure:

"The [Infrastructure Planning Commission] IPC may take into account any development consent obligations that an applicant agrees with local authorities. These must be relevant to planning, necessary to make the proposed development acceptable in planning terms, directly related to the proposed development, fairly and reasonably related in scale and kind to the proposed development, and reasonable in all other respects".

National Grid is fully aware of the need for compliance with the relevant legal and policy tests. If a community benefit is not relevant to planning and not necessary to make the Proposed Development acceptable in planning terms, then it would not meet the threshold set out in EN-1. If a community benefit does not pass all of the tests outlined in EN-1, then National Grid could not justify making such a contribution.

National Grid requests that reference to EN1 is included within the LDP in the context of NSIPs and planning obligations (Policy PS8 and paragraphs 7.3.5 – 7.3.8). Accordance with the EN-1 tests is necessary for the LDP to be made consistent with the policy context against which NSIP developments are determined.

Further Advice

National Grid is happy to provide advice and guidance concerning our networks.
